Art Unit: 3727

1. The sentence, "The lips that define the open end of pouch 11 can be shallow of lips 30 and 31 if desired," in lines 12 and 13 on page 10 is objected to as being unclear. What does "shallow of lips" mean? The sentence beginning in line 3 on page 11 is objected to as being inaccurate. It appears that "between" at the end of line 6 should be changed to "through."

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless –

(b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.

3. Claims 1-4, 8-10, and 14-17 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Attaway, U.S. Patent No. 5,775,530. Attaway discloses all claimed structural features including lips having a passive, non-sealing engagement at 110 and superimposed layers of cloth 300 and insulating material 302. The statements of function and intended use do not impart any structure to the claimed apparatus that is not disclosed by Attaway. Furthermore, claims directed to apparatus must be distinguished from the prior art in terms of structure rather than function. In re Danly, 263 F.2d 844, 847, 120 USPQ 528, 531 (CCPA 1959). "[A]pparatus claims cover what a device is, not what a device does." Hewlett-Packard Co. v. Bausch & Lomb Inc., 909 F.2d 1464, 469, 15 USPQ2d 1525, 1528 (Fed. Cir. 1990). (emphasis in original)

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claims 5-7, 11-13, and 18-20 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Attaway, U.S. Patent No. 5,775,530 in view of Anderson et al., U.S. Patent No 4,919,300. It would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art at the time the invention was made to provide Attaway's apparatus with hook and loop closure elements, as taught by Anderson et al. in Figure 5 (see col. 2, line 66-col. 3, line 1), because they would provide an additional measure of security to Attaway's container. Regarding the claims that require the closure elements to be supported by the lips, it is submitted that Anderson teaches this. Alternatively, the particular location would have been an obvious matter of choice.

6. The remaining patents are cited to show other devices having similar features.

7. Applicant's arguments filed with the reply have been fully considered but they are not persuasive. Applicant's comments under the heading, "Prosecution History" have been read and considered. All of the limitations in applicant's claims, including the functional and intended use limitations, were considered while writing the above rejections. In making the "102" rejections, the claims were not dissected and nothing was removed from them. The functional limitations were considered for what structure they add to the claims. When a prior art reference discloses all of the structure recited in an article claim, no functional limitation in the claim can patentably define over that reference because claims directed to apparatus must be distinguished from the prior art in terms of structure rather than function. In re Danly, 263 F.2d 844, 847, 120 USPQ 528, 531 (CCPA 1959). "[A]pparatus claims cover what a device is, not what a device does." Hewlett-Packard Co. v. Bausch & Lomb Inc., 909 F.2d 1464, 469, 15 USPQ2d 1525, 1528 (Fed. Cir. 1990). (emphasis in original) If applicant thinks that a functional limitation in any of the above rejected claims defines structure not present in the applied references, he is invited to particularly point out what that structure is.

8. One of the objectives of the patent examination process is to clearly establish the meaning of any allowed claim so that the public is apprised of the scope of the patent coverage. Thus, if applicant intends for a statement of function or intended use to impart structure to a claimed apparatus, at a minimum, that structure must be clearly pointed out. However, it is preferable that the structure, itself, be recited in the claim so that competitors in the art to which the patent is directed do not have to speculate about its scope.

9. The arguments directed to Campbell are moot in view of the new grounds of rejection.

10. Applicant's amendment necessitated the new ground(s) of rejection presented in this Office action. Accordingly, THIS ACTION IS MADE FINAL. See MPEP § 706.07(a). Applicant is reminded of the extension of time policy as set forth in 37 CFR 1.136(a).

A shortened statutory period for reply to this final action is set to expire THREE MONTHS from the mailing date of this action. In the event a first reply is filed within TWO MONTHS of the mailing date of this final action and the advisory action is not mailed until after the end of the THREE-MONTH shortened statutory period, then the shortened statutory period will expire on the date the advisory action is mailed, and any extension fee pursuant to 37 CFR 1.136(a) will be calculated from the mailing date of the advisory action. In no event, however, will the statutory period for reply expire later than SIX MONTHS from the date of this final action.
